

Aditya Dev Sood is India's foremost innovation expert. He is the founder of the Center for Knowledge Societies (CKS), which uses ethnography, design thinking and user experience modeling to make new things possible for governments, large corporations and young start-ups. On holidays he makes sculpture, brews beer and writes articles on design and society. Sood is a former Fulbright Scholar with two doctorates from the University of Chicago. He is currently writing a book on India's Innovation Path.